Explore the Great Outdoors in The Greenway Today!
Get up close and personal with nature & history in our area

Did you know?
Nearly 250 species of birds have been observed within the Greenway. Located adjacent to the Red and Red Lake Rivers and in the Central Flyway, The Greenway provides the perfect opportunity to view many different species of birds in their natural habitat. The Birds of the Greenway Checklist is now available online at www.grandforksgov.com/greenway.

Learn the local history and science of the river and Grand Cities!
A series of interpretive plaques and panels focusing on the natural and cultural history of the area are located throughout the Greenway.

- Local history
- River biology
- Wildlife management
- Plant life
- And more!

This 2,200-acre outdoor recreation area is also a classroom 365 days a year!
The location of the Greenway provides the perfect natural setting for educational opportunities in the Greater Grand Forks area. Area educators and students can observe native plant and animal species in their natural habitat, literally from their own backyards.
